Additional Interests

Some hobbies I enjoy doing is playing video games, Warhammer 40k, board game nights as well as researching and watching development of video games and watching indie developers Development logs. A sport I often play in is airsoft what help me with communication between my teammates as well as leadership if I am squad leader.

The types of video games I take an interest in developing are those with stories as I feel like it gives the player a more rememberable experience as well as bringing more emotion to games, branching story lines are also a big interest as I enjoy the idea of being able to pick my own outcome and see how my choices effect the story.
